NETHERLANDS / INDIA: REPRESSION - 09 DEC 2007

Indian court orders 'arrest without bail' of Dutch activists

A court in Bangalore has issued an order for the 'arrest without the possibility of bail' of seven campaigners over their websites postings about labour conditions of an Indian supplier of fashion label G-Star. The activists are from the Clean Clothes Campaign \(CCC\) and the India Committee of the Netherlands \(ICN\); the director of their Netherlands based ISP, Antenna, is included.

The case could have implications for activists posting anything on the web, with the court using the Convention on Cyber Crime to call for extradition. It all happens with the backdrop of the continuing campaign about labour conditions and particularly the huge number of child workers in India coming up against the religion of free trade.

The case has been running for some time now. As the legal threats get worse the campaign are asking for solidarity. As G-Star is the only remaining buyer from the jeans manufacturer at which the CCC and ICN have highlighted the labour rights violations they are asking people to make demands of them [listing things you can do \[cleanclothes.org\]](#). In the UK No Sweat! have called [a picket of G-star \[nosweat.org\]](#) focusing on their Covent Garden store. There are lots of outlets around [on their store locator \[g-star.com\]](#).

Indian court orders "arrest without bail" of Dutch activists

A court in Bangalore has issued an order for the "arrest without the possibility of bail" of seven campaigners over their websites postings about labour conditions of an Indian supplier of fashion label D-Star. The activists are from the Green Goddess Campaign (GGC) and the India Committee of the Netherlands (ICN), the director of their Netherlands based ISP, indymedia, is included.

The case could have major impacts for activists posting anything on the web, with the court using the Convention on Cyber Crime to call for extradition. It all happens with the backdrop of the continuing campaign about labour conditions, and particularly the huge number of child workers in India coming up against the results of free trade.

The case has been getting far worse since then. As the legal threats get worse the campaign are asking for solidarity. As D-Star is the only remaining buyer from the jeans manufacturer at which the CCC and ICN have highlighted the labour rights violations they are asking people to make demands of them having things you can do like on their own. In the UK No Sweat have called a picket of D-Star premises and focusing on their Covent Garden store. There are lots of outlets around so their store is not the only one.
